ANTI-CORRUPTION POLICY

Definition

Kvinna till Kvinna defines corruption as “an abuse of trust, power or position that results in improper gain for a person, organisation, political party, company or other”.

Corruption can take many forms, including, but not limited to, bribery, facilitation payments, gifts constituting an undue influence, kickback payments, favouritism and nepotism, extortion, sextortion, embezzlement, conflict of interest, theft and various forms of fraud, such as forgery or falsification of documents, financial fraud and procurement fraud.¹

Our definition includes both attempted and actual corruption, financial and non-financial corruption, and any irregularities related to corruption.

Introduction

At Kvinna till Kvinna, we believe in conducting our work ethically, honestly, transparently, with integrity and accountability, and in compliance with laws and regulations applicable to the contexts we work in. Our commitment to doing our work the right way is a crucial part of what makes us Kvinna till Kvinna.

In contrast, corruption poses a direct threat to our values, our ability to work according to a rights-based approach and our commitment to do no harm. It has profound adverse effects on social, economic and political development, disproportionately harms the poor and vulnerable (including women) and prevents us from properly and effectively conducting our work. Corruption contributes to the unequal allocation of resources and is often central to conflicts. Because of this, our anti-corruption work is in line with and contributes to conflict sensitivity in our operations.

Women are often disproportionately affected by corruption, as they tend to be overrepresented among those prevented from accessing and controlling resources (such as power) in society. This makes it particularly important for Kvinna till Kvinna to work against corruption, as it is a symptom and enabler of exclusionary, patriarchal power structures. Any direct or indirect involvement in corruption poses a serious threat to our integrity and credibility as an organisation, and could severely harm the women whose rights we promote. Preventing corruption in our operations is therefore not just a priority but a necessity dictated by our mandate, as well as a requirement for all staff, partner organisations, consultants, contractors and related third parties.

Kvinna till Kvinna works with funds that public and private donors trust us to use properly, efficiently and effectively. We have an obligation towards our donors to ensure neither these funds nor our activities are subject to corruption. Effective prevention, detection and response mechanisms for corruption are essential in protecting our interests against financial loss and reputational risk; delivering programmes and projects effectively; establishing trusted partnerships with our donors and partner organisations; and ensuring continued receipt of valuable contributions.

Note that this Anti-Corruption Policy is related to our Policy for Sustainable Partnerships, which contains guidelines for Kvinna till Kvinna staff on how to fulfil our role as a partner. One of our seven partnership principles is “Mutual accountability and anti-corruption”.

Zero tolerance

Kvinna till Kvinna has a zero-tolerance approach to corruption. Our stance on corruption, as enshrined in this Anti-Corruption Policy, is to never accept, always prevent, always inform, always act.

Zero tolerance means we do not tolerate any form of corruption in relation to our operations; any suspicion of corruption or breaches of this policy should immediately be reported. Kvinna till Kvinna takes all suspicion of corruption seriously. We assess, investigate, act upon and take disciplinary measures in all such cases as appropriate, in a professional, transparent and fair manner.

Compliance with this Anti-Corruption Policy is mandatory for Kvinna till Kvinna staff. Similarly, compliance with the Anti-Corruption Policy for Partner Organisations and Third Parties is mandatory for partner organisations and third parties, such as hired consultants and contractors. Failure to comply will result in disciplinary action, including the possible termination of the violating party’s employment, agreement or business relationship with Kvinna till Kvinna. We also reserve the right, without prejudice to any other right or remedy available, to take such additional action, civil and/or criminal, as may be appropriate.

Risk of corruption

In many of the contexts we and our partners operate in, corruption is extensive, institutionalised and even systemic. It poses a risk both internally in our organisation and externally in interactions with partner organisations, rights holders, consultants, public officials and others. We strive to prevent any possibility that the funds we provide might reinforce existing opportunities for corruption or generate new ones. Through this Anti-Corruption Policy, the related Anti-Corruption Policy for Partner Organisations and Third Parties, and our zero-tolerance approach to corruption, we aim to eliminate corruption from our operations and decrease overall levels of corruption in our areas of work.

Scope

This Anti-Corruption Policy applies internally to Kvinna till Kvinna’s entire organisation (head office, regional and programme offices), including all Kvinna till Kvinna employees, interns, volunteers, Board members and goodwill ambassadors, regardless of their role or tasks.

In other, external collaborations (with partner organisations and third parties), the abovementioned Anti-Corruption Policy for Partner Organisations and Third Parties shall be applied.

Kvinna till Kvinna should ensure partner organisations are aware of and apply the Anti-Corruption Policy for Partner Organisations and Third Parties, which is annexed to all cooperation agreements with partner organisations.
Responsibility

Kvinna till Kvinna’s secretary-general is responsible for informing the organisation’s Board about this Anti-Corruption Policy.

All managers at Kvinna till Kvinna are responsible for ensuring all employees are informed about the policy, have read and signed it, and understand how to identify, recognise and handle corruption or the risk thereof.

All employees are required to actively work to prevent corruption by identifying, recognising and acknowledging corruption risks throughout the organisation and reporting suspected cases of corruption.

Individuals who enter into agreements on behalf of Kvinna till Kvinna as an authorised signatory are responsible for ensuring that the respective partner organisation or third party complies with the Anti-Corruption Policy for Partner Organisations and Third Parties.

All reports made in good faith will be treated as such, even without initial proof and regardless of the outcome of any investigation.
Kvinna till Kvinna considers knowingly making a false report of corruption to be a violation of this policy. Doing so shall result in disciplinary action, including the possible termination of the violating party’s employment, agreement or business relationship with Kvinna till Kvinna.

Kvinna till Kvinna shall seek to recover any assets lost due to corruption.

Kvinna till Kvinna is committed to meeting its obligation to report corruption to relevant donors and external authorities as appropriate.

Risk management

We are committed to being aware of and understanding the anti-corruption laws and regulations applicable to our programmes and areas of operation. Both we and our staff will comply with applicable international anti-corruption legislation and conventions, the laws of the countries we operate in, and the rules and regulations of our donors. When local law sets a lower standard than this policy or our own administrative procedures, our internal procedures take precedence as long as they do not directly conflict with local law.

We shall learn from cases of corruption, take corrective action and adjust our culture, systems and practices accordingly, to better prevent future cases and ensure compliance.

We are committed to preventing corruption by systematically assessing and reviewing corruption risks in our operations according to our Risk Management Guide. We may implement risk-mitigation measures accordingly, including measures applicable to external parties such as partner organisations or other third parties.

Any such gifts shall be used appropriately for the benefit of Kvinna till Kvinna as an organisation, our projects and/or our partner organisations.
